DETAILED ACTION

Continued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on June 24, 2008 has been entered.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1, 2, 4-6, 10-20 and 23 and are rejected, as understood, under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by McKinley (U.S. Publication No. 2003/0032957).

McKinley discloses a medical device comprising a screw assembly including a base (comprised of a base head and bone screw anchor), a rod-shaped arm and an interconnection means. The interconnection means allows the arm to be positionable in a first position that is parallel to a long axis of the base and positionable in a second position that is perpendicular to the long axis of the base. The base is configured for attachment to a structure in a patient that is bone, and the arm is configured for attachment to a support structure. (See Figure 1 below) The support structure has at least one receiver (end of the support structure) included on the support element configured to receive the arm of the screw assembly and a locking mechanism configured to lock the arm and the support element. The medical device of McKinley also comprises a second screw and wherein the first and second screw assemblies are attached to the support structure. A second receiver of the support structure is on the opposite end of the first receiver. The overall length of the device is substantially between .1 and 100 centimeters and 50-600 millimeters that is sized for subcutaneous support of the posterior of a spine. Each side of the receiver is considered to be on opening leaving the interpretation of a plurality of openings in the receiver.

With regard the statement of intended use and other functional statements, they do not impose any structural limitations on the claims distinguishable over McKinley which is capable of being used as claimed if one so desires to do so. In re Casey, 152 USPQ 235 (CCPA 1967) and In re Otto, 136 USPQ 458, 459 (CCPA 1963). Furthermore, the law of anticipation does not require that the reference "teach" what the subject patent teaches, but rather it is only necessary that the claims under attack "read on" something in the reference. Kalman v. Kimberly Clark Corp., 218 USPQ 781 (CCPA 1983). Furthermore, the manner in which a device is intended to be employed does not differentiate the claimed apparatus from prior art apparatus satisfying the claimed structural limitations. Ex parte Masham, 2 USPQ2d 1647 (1987).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 7-9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over McKinley (U.S. Publication No. 2003/0032957).

McKinley discloses the claimed invention except for the material being of shape memory material or being suited for bending. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made McKinley device with the shape memory metal, since it has been held to be within the general skill of a worker in the art to select a known material on the basis of its suitability for the intended use as a matter of obvious design choice. In re Leshin, 125 USPQ 416. Using these materials will make the device more versatile.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 24-36 allowed.

Claims 21 and 22 objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Response to Arguments

Due to further examination the allowance to claims 1, 2, 4-20 and 23 and been withdrawn to the interpretation above.
